World Mental Health Day: Facts about depression A World Mental Health Day event was held at The Penn Museum in Philadelphia on March 10, 2015. The event was sponsored by the American Psychiatry Association, the American Psychosomatic Society, and the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI). It was presented in collaboration with the Penn Museum's Biomedical Imaging Center.

Introduction: Depression is a serious mental health disorder, affecting nearly one in five people around the world. Depression and suicide are significant public health issues worldwide. Worldwide, suicide is the second leading cause of death in people 15-29 years of age and the leading cause of death in people 15-24 years of age. The World Health Organization (WHO) and the World Federation of Mental Health (WFMH) have supported World Mental Health Day, which is held on 10 March every year, since 2000. The WHO and the WFMH hope that activities will raise awareness and promote health in the areas of mental health and mental illness. The Penn Museum offers visitors access to a wide range of information on mental health issues from our programming and exhibits. The American Psychiatric Association, American Psychosomatic Society, and National Alliance on Mental Illness are also active partners on this day of awareness and service.
